

Othello Station

Othello Station construction was part of building Central Link. It is a street-level station with side platforms. With plazas at the Northeast corners of Othello and Myrtle streets, the station's amenities include landscaping, public art, seating, bicycle parking and lighting.

Mode

Light rail

Highlights

Start of service: 2009

Location: Center of Martin Luther King Jr. Way South between South Myrtle and South Othello streets

Projected ridership: 1,400 daily boardings in 2020

Public art

The “Rainier Valley Haiku” sculpture by Roger Shimomura started with the idea of creating a cultural conversation. Roger Shimomura created sculpture of everyday items stacked into a totem shape that explores these.

